Here is Maggy's diary August 30

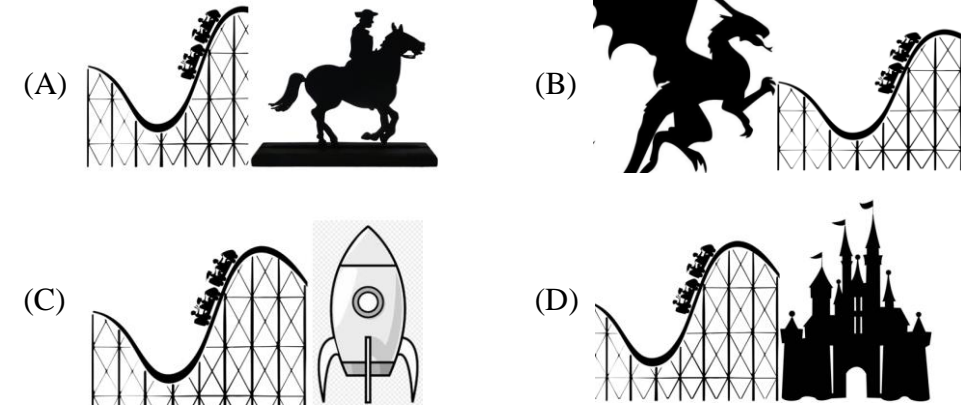

What a wonderful morning! After waiting for so long, it's today at last. I was so excited that I couldn't sleep easily last night. We saw dragons and castles. Dad took a photo of me and one of the dragons. They look so lovely. I wanted to keep them as pets, but Dad said no. How sad!

There is one roller coaster next to the castle. But I don't like that one. I like the roller coaster right next to the big horse. Dad was really scared and said he almost died. It was so funny. It was very sunny when we got to the amusement park at about seven. Although it started raining when we were having lunch, I still enjoyed it a lot. We went home soon after our delicious lunch, I really hope Dad can take me there again soon.

Jim got a bad grade on the math test. He couldn't understand math and didn't know what to do. He was very shy and embarrassed, so he was afraid to tell his parents about his problem and show his grade to his classmates. He was worried that he would fail the math test again and again. He even couldn't concentrate in class. After class, he talked to his math teacher, Mr. Wu, about his problem. Mr. Wu asked him to listen carefully in class and do more math exercises at home. He also had him preview and review lessons. And then he asked him to ask questions if he had any. He thought that asking questions was the most important tip for learning math. After Jim tried these ways to study math for more than one month, he did better on the math tests than before. He was very thankful for his teacher, Mr. Wu.
